ANNUAL REPORT

OF THE

ATTORNEY-GENERAL,

FOR THE YEAR ENDING

DECEMBER 31, 1861.

BOSTON:

WILLIAM WHITE, PRINTER TO THE STATE.

1862.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S OFFICE, }
January 1, 1862. }

To the Honorable Speaker of the House of Representatives :

SIR,—I herewith submit to the legislature a statement of the causes conducted by the Attorney-General during the past year.

I respectfully recommend to the attention of the legislature the subject of the amendment of the forms of indictments and of the practice in criminal cases so as to ensure greater simplicity, diminish the facility of escape upon merely technical defences, and bring criminal prosecutions to a termination more speedily than is possible under the existing system. It has sometimes been supposed that there exists a constitutional obstacle under the Massachusetts Declaration of Rights forbidding essential alterations in the forms of indictments. But it has been decided in the case of Commonwealth v. Patrick Holley, 3d Gray, 458, that the amendment of an indictment in its allegation of a former conviction under a statute provision, was not a violation either of the letter or spirit of the salutary provision of the Declaration of Rights which directs “that no subject shall be held to answer for any crime or offence until the same is fully and plainly, substantially and formally, described to him;” because, in the words of the late Chief Justice Shaw, “the object of the Declaration of Rights was to secure substantial privileges and benefits to parties criminally charged; not to require particular forms, except where they are necessary to the purposes of justice and fair dealing towards persons accused so as to ensure a full and fair trial.” And I have no doubt that a judicious revision of the forms of indictments and criminal pleading may be made, which shall be obnoxious to no constitutional objection, and deprive the accused of no just rights, but shall afford in all cases ample opportunities for a full defence on the merits, with no less information of the particulars of the crime charged than is now given, and yet sweep away forever numerous technical objections which always operate to delay convictions, and not unfrequently to secure the escape altogether of the guilty. In attempting such a reform, Lord Campbell's Act, (stat. 14 and 15 Victoria, ch. 100,) which has been in successful operation in England for more than ten years, furnishes a model well adapted to imitation in most particulars; and suitable forms of indictments under the modern practice are to be found in recent English criminal text-books. In 1860 similar enactments were adopted in Pennsylvania, upon the recommendation of the able commissioners who prepared the revised penal code of that State.

The facilities for delay existing under our present system are, in my opinion, a very great evil and require some legislative correction, even though it should not be thought wise to adopt the general measures of reform above recommended. Wherever a defendant at large on bail is convicted, exceptions or a motion in arrest of judgment follow as a matter of course, and, however frivolous, are effectual to postpone his sentence many months. For instance, in the county of Worcester, a man convicted at the term of the Superior Court held on the third Monday of October, may file exceptions which cannot be argued in the Supreme Judicial Court until the first Tuesday of the following October, and if then overruled, the defendant cannot be sentenced until the next term of the Superior Court in that county, so that he gains a whole year's delay upon some point perhaps never argued, or overruled as soon as brought to the attention of the court. Provisions designed to secure a deliberate examination of serious and doubtful legal questions before an appellate court, are thus abused and perverted merely to postpone the day of punishment. Parties in actual custody too poor and too friendless to obtain bail are sentenced at the first term, and this creates an unjust discrimination in favor of the wealthier classes of criminals. Moreover, in offences of minor grades, such delay of punishment almost entirely destroys its moral effect upon both the criminal and the community. If common assaults, drunkenness, liquor selling and other kindred offences deserve the infliction of any penalty, it ought to follow the commission of the act with reasonable promptness.

It was at one time sought to obviate this long acknowledged evil by having criminal appeals argued in Boston every month, but this arrangement proved unpopular in the remoter counties and is unlikely to be extended beyond its present limits. Some other course therefore must be indicated, and it is certainly easier to point out the evil than to suggest an expedient and unobjectionable remedy.

To require every objection to any indictment for a formal defect apparent on the face thereof to be taken by demurrer, or motion to quash before the jury is sworn, and not afterward, and to do away with motions in arrest of judgment, except for causes affecting the jurisdiction of the court, would considerably lessen the number of technical objections and frequently save great expense to the Commonwealth.

As the law now stands, (Gen. Stat. ch. 115, sect. 10,) if exceptions taken appear to the justice of the Superior Court, before whom the trial is had, to be frivolous, immaterial or intended for delay, sentence may be passed notwithstanding the allowance of the exceptions. But I respectfully suggest to the consideration of the legislature whether it is not desirable to go further, and to require the presiding judge to certify, in every criminal case, whether the questions involved in the bill of exceptions or in any appeal claimed to the Supreme Judicial Court are of sufficient doubt and importance to render proper a delay of sentence until after their determination by the tribunal of last resort, and if, in his judgment, they are not so, to pass immediate sentence. Whenever sentence is thus passed there should be given to the defendant, the privilege of entering his exceptions or appeal forthwith at a law term in any county, and having his case examined without delay, by a provision similar to that now existing as to writs of error in criminal cases, (Gen. Stat. ch. 146, sect. 12.) There may be some other method preferable to this, but I am so deeply impressed with the extent and character of the evil pointed out as to deem it my duty to offer the best suggestion for its remedy that has occurred to my mind, after considerable reflection.

I also recommend the propriety of some restriction upon the privilege of bail where a defendant is arrested upon a capias after once having forfeited his bail bond or recognizance.

In such cases it seems reasonable that a party should not be enlarged again on a new bond or recognizance, unless it is shown, on application to a justice of the Superior Court, that he has some reasonable excuse for his previous default and forfeiture. It frequently happens that a party, out on bail, will go into hiding to avoid sentence, so that he cannot be taken until after the term of court is over, when he returns to his home and business and if arrested upon a warrant, forthwith gives new bail and obtains liberty until the next criminal term in the county. The enactment suggested is directed against this abuse.

I have the honor to be

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

DWIGHT FOSTER, Attorney-General.
